

Living near the satellite station in Tallahassee, FL, I've had a great experience in receiving K-Love. My friend really enjoy the music, and so do I. It isn't just the music; the personalities are absolutely wonderful. The advertising isn't filled with vulgar connotations or sexual innuendo that I don't want to be exposed to. It's good music with a good message.

I think it would be detrimental to the station for LPFM to take priority over K-Love, because it may be lost! There are hundreds of thousands of people would be out of a great radio station.

Many people are not Christians, but K-love isn't directed only at Christians.

Everyone wants to hear encouragement and love, even when they're driving in their car. The public would have less people to remind them that life's working out in a good way, they're loved, especially by God, and other encouraging things to brighten their day. Keeping K-Love is quite helpful to those who listen, and that is a lot of people!
